CoP Suggestions for New Kuali Builders

Waldrop, Kevin 5/21 3:03 PM

Today's CoP Topic - What would you suggest for a new Kuali Builder?

As part of today's CoP Introductions, we are asking each attendee to reply to this question. Do you have advice, a tip, a link, an idea for someone new to Kuali Build? How can we help our new Builders? Add your comments below, and thank you!

Hendricks, Nicole 5/21 3:08 PM

Shadow a Kuali SME and utilize the APIs

Erickson, Nickolaus 5/21 3:08 PM

If you have the opportunity, chat with other builders to see what they have done. If you're a visual person, write out off Kuali workflow how you want a form to go and then start plugging things into the workflow to see that it works the way you wanted. Test test test before sending out.

CoP Suggestions for New Kuali Builders

Schroeder, Mindy 5/21 3:09 PM

Kuali is finicky. When you're working on the workflow, you can lose your work if the workflow isn't saved. Make sure you have someone show you how to save it so you don't lose it.

Weems, Bonnie 5/21 3:09 PM

Search the documentation before Google. They do a pretty good job keeping it up-to-date and the platform options are constantly changing

Hoffmann, Giulia 5/21 3:09 PM

Test out whatever forms you've built with some colleagues first before you go live! Lots of different types of colleagues/across various units so you can see if there are any issues with various people viewing things, etc.

Levy, Katherine 5/21 3:12 PM

See if someone else has a form with features or fields you like and use it as a baseline to get started.

Knowles, Margarita 5/21 3:16 PM

It was easy to learn, and fun to build forms.

Waldrop, Kevin 5/21 3:55 PM

(Watch a video, links here) Start small! Create a simple form with 1 or 2 steps in the workflow and watch it work! It gives a great boost to add another step, and keep growing your experience!
